Open Government Licence

The Open Government Licence (OGL) is a licensing model which facilitates the use and re-use of a broad range of public sector information. The Open Government Licence is a simple licensing mechanism, which:

- can be adopted across the UK public sector;
- is the default licence for a wide range of information owned by UK public sector;
- covers copyright and database right;
- covers any information than an Information Provider and/or rights owner offers for re-use under its terms and conditions;
- supports the inclusion of machine-readable description and semantic web properties;
- does not require registration or charge; and
- has as few restrictions as necessary.

Under the OGL information may be used and re-used for both commercial and non-commercial purposes. Licensees are required to include an attribution statement to acknowledge the source of the information, in any use of the information as follows:

About the Open Government Licence

The Controller of Her Majesty’s Stationery Office (HMSO) has developed this licence as a tool to enable Information Providers in the public sector to license the use and re-use of their Information under a common open licence. The Controller invites public sector bodies owning their own copyright and database rights to permit the use of their Information under this licence.

The Controller of HMSO has authority to license Information subject to copyright and database right owned by the Crown. The extent of the Controller’s offer to license this Information under the terms of this licence is set out on The National Archives website.

This is version 2.0 of the Open Government Licence. The Controller of HMSO may, from time to time, issue new versions of the Open Government Licence. If you are already using Information under a previous version of the Open Government Licence, the terms of that licence will continue to apply.

These terms are compatible with the Creative Commons Attribution License 4.0 and the Open Data Commons Attribution License, both of which license copyright and database rights. This means that when the Information is adapted and licensed under either of those licences, you automatically satisfy the conditions of the OGL when you comply with the other licence. The OGLv2.0 is Open Definition compliant.
